The FCC needs to continue to keep public decency standards high and not interfere with PAID services on Satellite systems. XM has it's stations marked in their parental guidance channels. There is nothing wrong with putting traffic and weather channels on it's lineup. NAB Petition 04-160 should be denied. If the National Association of Broadcasters would get on the ball and offer over the air stations like this for cities then XM would not have to use their channels for this. I for one like the new channels for traffic and weather. As a matter of fact I just used it for going around Chicago,IL during a rush hour and saved a lot of time. I have yet to find an over the air network that does the same thing.
